

Investigation Planning for Week

Get out your planner and fill in the blanks on when you will do your mindful inquiries this week.

Example: On Wednesday, I will investigate one self-judgmental thought after the evening dog walk, in my home office.

On (day of week) _____ I will investigate one self-judgmental thought (time – preferably before or after a routine activity) _____
(location) _____.

On (day of week) _____ I will investigate one self-judgmental thought (time) _____
(location) _____.

On (day of week) _____ I will investigate one self-judgmental thought (time) _____
(location) _____.

Please put these activities in your planner, and then follow through. Do your celebratory move for finishing this assignment. Way to go, friend!

Intention Setting for Week 6

Mindfulness, Meditation, Gratitude, & Investigation

Purpose

Starting new habits can take effort. This intention-setting practice helps remind you of your loving intentions that motivate you to do your mindfulness practices.

Personalizing These Intentions

Read these intentions and, if you want, substitute the words in parenthesis with other words that more genuinely speak to your heart, or make more sense for you.

For your intentions on when to give gratitude each day, check the box of those you lovingly intend to do. If you have other ideas of when to give thanks, write them in the blanks and check the box in front of them.

Then, when reading your intentions, only read those you checked.

Keep Giving Thanks

It's important to appreciate the little things. Keep using your celebratory move throughout your day to give thanks for all the wins and victories.

Instructions

- Do this activity as early in the day as possible, right after meditating.
- Read out loud using a kind, powerful voice.
- Have your posture be upright, strong, confident, and energetic. Keep your head held high.
- Read these intentions with meaning and feeling. Do your best to feel joy and kindness in your heart.
- If helpful, look at yourself in a mirror when you read them.
- Aim to memorize the script within one to three weeks of practice.
- Review the BALADI and Mindful Pause handouts whenever necessary to refresh yourself on those practices.

Intention Setting – Week 6

Instructions are in italics below. They are to be followed and not read aloud.

The start of each new section has a heading in bold. The number in parenthesis () is how many times to read that section out loud. Between sections, take one-breath-cycle mindful pause.

I will be mindful of my motives (3)

Is life more fulfilling when love and service motivate my actions, rather than aversion and greed? Today, I will find out! I will mindfully notice the motivations behind my actions from moment-to-moment, and pay attention to how different motivations lead to different mental, emotional, and behavioral patterns.

I will investigate my motives (3)

As I go about my day, I will purify my motives, and the skillfulness of my actions, by asking of each activity:

- Who or what does this serve?
- How does this serve and benefit life?
- How does this help all life thrive?

If an activity doesn't contribute to my wellbeing or the wellbeing of others, I may want to renounce that activity.

For all other activities, I will let these questions remind me to be love-motivated and joyfully serve.

I will be here now (3)

I could spend my day lost in futuring and pasting, but the now is all there is, so I choose to come to my senses and be here now.

I will relate mindfully to thoughts (1)

I could believe unkind, unhelpful, and untrue thoughts, but then they rule me and lead me to suffer and act unskillfully.

Instead, I choose to be mindful of thoughts. I don't resist them. I don't identify with them. And if they generate afflictive emotions, I know them to be false, and I don't believe them.

A finger pointing at the moon is not the moon. Thoughts are fingers pointing at the moon. Rather than fixate on the finger, I choose to come to my senses, and know the moon directly.

I will investigate falsehoods (1)

I could uncritically believe my thoughts, but I choose to investigate them so I can train my brain to be more (wise, kind, helpful, balanced, and skillful):

I will meditate (1)

There is so much to do, but meditation is a top priority for me. It helps me live with more (mindfulness, love, wisdom, courage, and persistence):

I will give thanks (1)

I could focus on what's negative, but I choose to give thanks so I can live with more (joy, laughter, creativity, play, and abundance):

I set a loving and firm intention to give thanks

(10) _____ or more times today.

If you consistently give thanks 10 or more times a day, then you have completed your intention setting for the day! Give thanks and celebrate with your celebratory move. Then mark in your log that you completed this activity.

If you are not yet consistently giving thanks 10 or more times a day, then read the next section out loud once. Only read those behaviors that you intend to do.

When I Will Give Thanks (1)

Every day, I will give thanks (Check all that you intend to do):

- First thing when I wake up.
- When I do my BALA(DI) practice.
- When I read my gratitude partner's gratitudes.
- When I message my gratitude partners.
- When I see my gratitude slogans.
- Whenever my timer goes off. (Set your phone or watch timer to go off every hour, half hour, or an interval of your choosing throughout the day to remind you to give thanks.)
- Before meals.
- When being skillful.
- Before, after, or while spending time with family and friends.
- When smelling, tasting, hearing, or seeing something delightful.
- When starting a task.
- While doing a task.
- After finishing a task.
- When celebrating victories, be they small, medium, or large.
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- _____
- Before going to bed at night.
- Whenever else I remember to.

You're done for today! Give thanks and celebrate with your celebratory move.

Now mark in your log that you completed this activity.

Way to go! I appreciate your skillful effort!
